This request was made in accordance with the Extradition Act of 1870, which states Sept. 17, Palestine, from London to Hong-"A fugitive criminal shall not be survision is made by the law of that state. or by arrangement, that the fugitive | majority of Europeans. Residence in or criminal shall not, until he has been restored or had an opportunity of returning to Her Majesty's dominions, detained or tried in that foreign state for any offence committed prior to his surrender other than the extradition crime proved by the facts on which th surrender is granted." The United States Government opposed to this Act their Treaty with England, under which they contended they were not obliged to give any such promise or undertaking. the whole no doubt England has acted wisely in surrendering the point to United States. Under any circumstances, the step is one in the direction of a further recognition of the right of States to deal with their own offenders, wherever found, without interference from other Governments, and in the case of civilised and enlightened country like America, this is assuredly not a matter for regret. As it is, England will not even now be called upon to surrender any fugitive criminal whose offence is of a political character, or if he can prove to the satisfaction of the Police Magistrate or the Court before whom he is brought on habeas corpus, that the quisition for his surrender has in been made with a view to try or punish him for an offence of a political character. nor-will any fugitive criminal be surrendered, whatever may be the nature of the offence with which he is charged. unless a prima facie case has been first Goods per Altona undelivered after this proved against him. expense. Some diversity of opinion and perhaps some passing ill-feeling has been caused in the Colony over the affair, but these matters are the inevitable sequence of most public questions or agitations of special interest. The whole affair was conducted in a manner which in our opinion reflected the greatest credit upon the chief parties concerned, namely, the Colonial Government and the United States' Consul; and by no stretch of the reasoning powers can we conceive how the community here, or that portion of it which attended the public meeting in reference to the case, have transgressed in any way, although on this point some think differently.

Some enquiry has been excited through

Mr Phillippo having been gazetted

Acting Attorney General, instead of, simply, Attorney General. Considering the fact that Mr Phillippo received the latter appointment some months ago, the notification in the Gazette certainly does appear somewhat singular upon the mere face of it, but the explanation is a very simple one. Mr Phillippo is gazetted Acting Attorney General because the official documents of his appointment to the Attorney Generalship have not yet come to hand, and he cannot be placed in permanent possession of the post without them. We observe from a Straits contemporary that a few days before our new Attorney General left Singapore he received the appointment of Acting Chief Justice, no doubt as a compliment. Possibly, however, the arrival in the Settlements of Mr Ford, who had received exactly the same appointment as that then held by Mr Phillippo, namely, Senior Puisne Judge, account in some measure for step. The Singapore speak very favourably of the services rendered by Mr Phillippo Straits. The Observer, for instance, remarks—"There is no doubt that the removal of Mr Phillippo's services will be a serious loss to the Colony, and if it Government and the Consul for the were possible to retain him here. REVIEW.*

The enormous amount of printed Literature relating to China in languages other than Chinese is probably unrealized by the near the country seems rather to quench than inflame curiosity in most cases, and to announce that a book treats of something connected with China is, as a rule, to ensure its neglect. There is however a hardworking minority to whom such works are matters of interest, Consular and Customs officials, journalists and missionaries constitute a literary circle which is ever ready to welcome fresh effort, however faulty, if it be only honest; and to such circle the work before us will not appeal vain. The Messrs Möllendorff have indeed come forward to supply a want, which each succeeding year renders more pressing. His daughter, who was much admired in society here, has lately returned to San Francisco from a delightful trip to Japan. In the matter of the Estate of A. Heard Co., and of the claim of The China Traders' Insurance Company, Limited, His Lordship the Chief Justice delivers the following judgment :-

Mr Justice Snowden having refused a motion to examine witnesses in London made in the above matter, this appeal from that devision was argued before us on the 14th December last, and we reserved judgments After conferring on the facts and on the arguments, we are clearly of opinion that this appeal must be dismissed. The case being dults now and surrounded with difficulties, we decided that the appeal be dismissed without costs, and that there be no costs of the original hearing. We should have been glad to have added remarks on the general scope of the clauses of the Bankrustcy Ordinance as they affect Trust Deeds and proceedings under them, but it is so difficult to lay down general directions, that, although prepared, we think it best to abandon the attempt. I would only add that I think the potition was premature, that the China Traders' Company should have tendered to the Trustees afformal proof in some of the ways pointed out in the Ordinance, and have waited till the Trustees had refused to account it and put it on the test of proofs, On refusal, there would be a "difference

rily deserted her old asylum, is now enjoying the magnificent autumn weather of Florence, which has been incessant sunshine since her arrival. She has taken the Villa Oppenheim, a house on the new drive called the Calle, close by Arcetre and the hill whence Galileo "watched the secrets of the stars." It is a terribly modern building; and modern structures do not suit Tuscan scenes; but, as compensation. it has everything in the way of luxury and elegance that the wealth of the well-known banker who built it for his beautiful wife could command from modern designers and furnishers. The Empress chiefly uses the great ballroom to sit in ; and as she has just ordered a quantity of fresh carpets. for all the rooms, it is to be hoped that the longed to have his "attendant spirit" love at first sight with which Florence manifested to him, receives it tremblingly inspired her may prove an enduring passion; with gratitude. — Chambers's Journal. but sa Majesté est tant soit peu capridieuss. which is to be excused in a woman who has reigned in the stead of Marie Antoinette.
